Reflections on the Sunday Readings:

There are times in our lives when we may be called to pitch in, to join others in a task, and we'd rather not be asked. We're comfortable with the status quo; or we might not get along with some of the people involved; or we're being stretched beyond what we think are our limits. Should we let our fear and reluctance decide for us? Today's readings say no!

Both the first reading and the Gospel speak of a people being drawn from darkness to light, from death to life. What an apt image for the call of discipleship—Jesus calling his first followers from the darkness of their known lives into the light of discipleship in the kingdom. James and John overcame any fear or reluctance and trusted that God would give them whatever they needed to follow Jesus.

In the second reading, St. Paul urges us to put aside our differences and work collectively for the common good; otherwise, we will not be imitating Christ who is the centre of our existence. This is a challenging reminder to us in this Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, for all Christians to be faithful to our baptismal vocation to proclaim the gospel with one voice, following Jesus without fear or reluctance. May we all answer yes when Jesus says, "Come, follow me."
